Farther Particulars of O'Connell. At the Repeal Association October 9th, immediately after the dispersion of the Clontarf meeting, O'Connell thus described his future plans: My course is manifest. That proclamation has done nothing to siler my course of conduct, except in so far as my attendance at the meeting yesterday was concerned. It certainly did prevent my attending that; but there all its influence was at an end. I did intend, before Parliament sat, to have had a simultaneous meeting of severy parish throughout Ireland, on the same day, to petition them; and those petitions were to be signed regularly by all the resident Repealers, commencing with the clergymen. I cannot now make a day for this great simultaneous assembling of the Irish nation; for I wish the excitement and indignation raised by the foolish and mad proclamation in the breasts of the people to be assuaged before we renture to do so. I give notice of my plan; and on a certain day, yet to be appointed, every parish in Ireland shall meet to seek the restoration of their native Legislature. Before the next sitting of Parliament, it will be necessary to hold two of these simultaneous parochial meetings of universal Ireland.—The first, for the due exposition of their grievances, and the drawing up of petitions adopted and signed man by man. These meetings will take place after mass; and the necessary business will be transacted in the little yards or enclosures attached to every chapel. I want to know how they will prevent our meeting to petition simultaneously throughout reland, altheugh they may prevent our meeting in multi-My course is manifest. That proclamation has done nothing ness will be transacted in the little yards of enclosures attached to every chapel. I want to know how they will prevent our meeting to petition simultaneously throughout Ireland, although they may prevent our meeting in multitudes. To arrange this was one of my reasons for giving up monster meetings; but I have still something more to work out. I shall also carry into operation the plan of our arbitration courts universally. In this I believe the Proclamation will give us no small help; and soon all over Ireland there will be gentlemen dispensing justice to all who seek it. I have also another plan. It is to prevent Irish estates from being overloaded with mortgages, the interest of which is handed over to persons in England. The object is to buy up the debts due on Irish estates, and the plan is most promising. It would be carried into effect by a company of gentlemen with £100 shares; and from the number of anticipated subscribers that would be amply sufficient; and this company would be embodied for the purpose of taking up the debts due in England and to Englishmen from Irish estates. Thus, the interest of the debt or mortgages would be paid and spent in Ireland instead of in England land instead of in England

Afterwards, again exhorting the people to obey his advice and break no law, he says:

I will take the necessary steps for carrying out my plan for the formation of the Irish House of Commons, which I trust I shall be enabled to lay before Parliament in the very first week

Alluding to the dispersion of the people who came to Clontarf, he praised their conduct, and that of the soldiers.

I have to express my delight at the conduct of the people yesterday; they good humored, and attentive to our instructions. I have also to express my admiration at the exemplary conduct of the soldiery. Nothing could be more proper than their behavior; but nothing could be more cruel than to keep the poor fellows standing together all day for nothing. And then there was the pride and pomp of the Lord Lieutenant going to review the aimy. (Laughter.) They assail us with the charge of desecrating the Sabbath; but I wonder what the Lord Lieutenant was doing on Sunday mounted on his porty, prancing down the road? I speak well of the people and of the soldiery, and my swelling heart beats high for the consummation of the liberty of Ireland. O'Connell finished with a "Hurrah, then, for old Ireland and the Repeal !" The call was answered by "tremendous cheering, which continued," says the Freeman's Journal, "without intermission for nearly a quarter of an hour. In the midst of it, O'Connell sat down; but when it subsided, he rose again, and moved a resolution: That whilst we repeat to the people of Ireland our conviction that "whoever commits a crime gives strength to the enemy," and while we pledge them and ourselves to a perfect obedience to the law, we at the same time avow before the inhabitants of the British empire, and before the inhabitants of the British empire, and before the inhabitants of the civilized world, that we never will desist from the legal and constitutional pursuit of the Repeal of the Union, until an Irish Parliament is in College Green again. This was carried with great cheering. During the proceedings, several sums were handed in towards the Repeal rent, under the name of "Proclamation money." O'Connell beginning with £5; £600 had been collected that day; and at the close the total of the week's rent was £1,105. After the meeting, the dinner which was to have been held at Clontarf was held at the Rotunda; all the rooms of which were engaged for the occasion. It was one of the most numerous meetings of the kind ever held in Dublin. O'Connell presided; he entered the principal room at past 5 o'clock, accompanied by several members of the Corporation, in their robes; the band playing, "See the conquering hero comes." The first toast, "Our excellent Sovereign, the Queen, God bless her," the Chairman to contrast the allegiance of the Irish people with that of the Tory jury was so formed they had a difficulty to find the unfortunate youth guirty of having fired at the Queen. In addition to that, when her husband was to have the establishment voted to him, the Tories struck off £20,000 a year; and that very jarty that took off £20,000 from Prince Albert, gave to the beastly bigoted monster, the King of Hanover. That was the contrast between them and the Tories; and nothing could possibly prevent the continuance of their allegiance.

Afterward he made a supplementary allusion to the simultaneous meetings:

He hoped, before the lapse of a fortnight, that the excitement produced by that proclamation would be so abated that they would be able to have a simultaneous meeting in every parish of Ireland, to petition her Majesty to remove the Administration that had placed the lives of her Majesty's Irish subjects in such jeopardy.

The rest of the speeches were of little mark. October 11 .- An adjourned meeting of the Repeal Association took place on Wednesday .--O'Connell entered the room amidst great cheering. After a number of sums as 'proclamation money,' were handed in, with a letter from New-Jersey, U. S., covering £20 11s 6d-O'Connell made some observations with regard to the massacre at Mullaghmast, and read some extracts from 'Leland's History of Ireland,' (the author being an English Protestant clergyman,) confirmatory of the fact having occurred. O'Connell then spoke at some length in defence of his recent speech relative to the Bourbons in France. Mr. Morgan, in handing in some proclamation money, said the placard which had been referred to in the Government proclamation, as ordering the procession to Clontarf to proceed in military order, he alone was accountable for, it having been done without the knowledge of the Association. O'Connell was glad of the explanation: he had before described the placard as a humbug, but, as the Government had only humbugs to rely on, they might take that bug along with the rest. O'Connell then brought forward an address to the Irish in America, in reply to a communication previously received from Cincinnati, on the subject of Slavery-his reading of it occupied three quarters of an hour, and at the conclusion was received with loud cheering. He then said some had imagined that the Repeal agitation would now diminish; but never were the people of Ireland more determined than at present to persevere; and he implored them to abstain from excitement and intemperance, and success was mevitable. He told the fund-holders that to-morrow he would purchase two thousand pounds more in the Stocks-he had defeated Peel and Wellington before, and would again. After referring to other matters, he moves that the committee prepare an address to the people of Ireland, which was seconded by Mr. Cornelius O'Callaghan, and passed with acclamation. Mr. O'Connell, in moving an adjournment till Monday, stated that the Conciliation Hall would be ready next week, and on his motion the meeting ad-proceedings was 1 o'clock; but at twenty minutes before that time, O'Neill Daunt moved J. O. O'Neill, of Bunown Castle, into the chair, which he took amid great cheering. O'Neill, after returning thanks for the honor conferred on him, said that he had been led to suppose that, by taking the chair on that day, he was occupying a post of some danger; therefore, he offered himself forti. (Loud cheers.) Inspector Mayer, of the Metropolitan Police, here entered the room, and was accommodated with a seat at the reporter's table, on which he placed a note-book. O'Neill continued to say, that since the recent institution of proceedings by the Government. which he piaced a note-book. O'Neill continued to say, that since the recent institution of proceedings by the Government the chair of that Association had been occupied by the son of O'Connell and by Daunt. It was now time for others to seek the same responsibility, and for a man of his name to stand forward. (Cheers.) Two O'Connell's had been stricken, and it never should be said that a third was smitten before an O'Neill stepped forward.

O'Connell here entered the room, and was received with long and protracted cheers.

ceived with long and protracted cheers.

The Chairman continued to observe that he had not all at once adverted to the recent proceedings of Government against the Liberator, in order that he might approach the subject calmly and dispassionately. O'Connell would take his trial before a Jury of his countrymen, and he respected that palladium of their liberties too much to prejudge the case which was to be submitted to them: but this much he might say, that any imputation on the loyalty of O'Connell was an imputation on their loyalty also—(hear, hear)—for they looked on him as the man to steer them clear of disloyalty, if any man were base enough to adopt that feeling. (Hear, hear, and cheers.) They would receive in dignified silence the insication by Government of its opinion that there was disaffection. Let them try the question before an impartial Jury—(hear, hear, from Mr. C'Connell)—and, with the blessing of God, he would come out of the prosecution purer even than before. (Cheers.) In the case of the Liberator, depositions were sworn against him, and an indictment was framed. But was the Irish Nation sworn against, or what was the indictment against it? The charge with which they were branded—that of disloyalty—was the most disgraceful which could be alledged against those living under a monarchical form of government. If, by the course taken, the government hoped to prevent a certain class from joining the ranks of repeal, and prevent a certain class from joining the ranks of repeal, and to silence the national voice, they had deceived themselves. The infant giant had been reared before their eyes—it had rapidly sprung into manhood, and it was not possible to send it back to its cradle or inll it to repose. (Loud cheers.) If that were a disloyal association, the time to proclaim it was when it was springing into existence; but, on the contrary, now, when they were committed to repeal—when it would be the meanest conduct to hold back—they were desired to abandon their opinions. After some further observations in a similar strain, O'Neill concluded by entreating that association, and repealers generally, to abandon the use of the word "Saxon," as applied to Englishmen, as the phrase had made many enemies for their cause.

O'Connell handed in £120, being the first instalment of proclamation money from the city of Limerick.

Limerick.

O'Connell said, that before any more money was handed in, he would call the attention of the meeting to some matters of importance. Having expressed the gratifude of the Association to the Chairman for the discourse with which he had honored them, he proceeded to say that he would, at the conclusion of his remarks, move that their present Chairman be requested to act as Chairman on Monday, at the meeting which would be held in the Conciliation Hall, which would then be ready for that purpose. (Hear, hear, hear.) Having denied that the people were obnoxious to the charge of disloyalty, but; on the contrary, entitled to the greatest praise for their strict obedience to the laws, O'Connell came to the topic of a Federal Parliament. In the corporation debate on repeal, he had declared his willingness to accept a Federal Parliament, and instanced Canada, where such a Farliament had done much good. Since then, many persons had joined that association, who went no farther than a federal union; and he had lately received a letter from a gentleman of high eistinction in England on the subject, in which his (O'Connell's) attention was directed to two points, concerning which the writer believed it to be of the greatest importance that the people of England should have correct information before they would pringenerally or extensively with that association. (Hear.) The first point was that it should be shown to the people of England that Irishmen, in seeking for the restolation of a parliament to their country, strove only to procure for themselves the management of their own local and internal affairs, leaving matters of national importance to both countries in the imperial legislature. The next point was that I rishmen, so Irishmen should assist Englishmen in their struggle to obtain a full, fair, and free represention. (Hear, hear, hear.) He (O'Connell's) would meet such propositions in the spirit in which they were put forward, and he told that general legislature of the English people came forward there wo forward there would be no difficulty in arranging repeal on the definite plan mentioned by him. (Hear.) Having cau-tioned the people against ribbonism, he read a letter signed by Jose & Sturge, of Birmingham, in which the repealers of that leading expressed their astonishment at the sten taken by you

O'Connell proposed an Address to the People of Ireland, in which he again, in forcible terms, impressed the necessity

Russia and the Caucassians.—Letters from Tiflis of the 10th September, contain rumors of the surprise and capture by the Caucassians, of a Russian fortress in the Black Sea.

The Russians are building a superb fortress on the frontiers of Turkey and Asia. It is situated on a hill that rises in the midst of an extensive plain, at the distance of half a league from the river Aspatchat. The barracks are sufficient to lodge an army of 50,000 men.

From the moment she came on the throne she was made the victim of their calumnies. The Tory press teemed with abominable accusations; and the feeling of hostility was created in the breasts of young creatures, who speculated in firing shots at her Majesty; and even in the case of Oxford the jury was so formed they had a difficulty to find the unfortunate parth entity of hyper feed at the Oxford, had difficulty to find the unfortunate of the payment of tribute, and the local administration of justice. The insurgents had REBELLION IN MOROCCO.-News from Tangier mustered together a considerable force, and set at utter defiance the local authorities. Toward the end of the month of August, the Emperor collected a numerous army at Mequinez, about 120 miles south of Tangier, and 35 west of Fez, and marched into the centre of the revolted province, where he remained for some time encamped, provoking the rebels by every possible means to an engagement.

The boldness of these proceedings struck terror into the hearts of the Zemor-Chelgists, and after various skirmishes, in which the efforts of the insurgents were invariably repelled, the Emperor routed them at last in a decisive engagement, slaying numbers, and making many hun- packers and butchers, and the balance laid overdred prisoners. His victory was of the most complete description, and the discomfitted rebels | day about 80 head of fresh Cattle came in, and were offered were unable this time to avail themselves of their for sale, together with those left at the commencement of the rocky and nearly inaccessible mountains, which have hitherto been the effectual shield of revolt .-Before leaving the province the Emperor ordered a vast number of heads to be struck off, including those of nearly all the prisoners (according to the custom of Oriental warfare,) imposed many heavy pecuniary fines, and carried off hostages from amongst the most considerable families of the REPORTED ATTEMPT TO ASSASSINATE THE Pope.-A letter from Rome, of the 27th ultimo, in the Gazette de France, says :- A report has probably reached you of an attempt to assassinate the Pope. The fact is, that a physician, who is a great revolutionist, but driven to desperation by want of money, went one day to the Palace, and although he has a wooden leg, entered as nimbly as if it was his own house. Being met, and asked who he wanted, he replied that he wished to speak to his Holiness on very urgent affairs. With much difficulty he was induced to withdraw. On reaching the court he fired a pistol, without its being perceived that it was he who caused the explosion. The next day he returned again, and went on until he met Capitanino, the Pontiff's valet, to whom he insisted on being immediately allowed to see the Pope on matters of high interest. His entrance was, however, refused, and he went away, but he was arrested on leaving the Palace. A loaded pistol was found upon him.

AN ATTEMPT TO MURDER THE MASTER OF THE WHALESHIP MAINE, OF FAIRHAVEN .- This ship left at Lahaina, Maui, April 25th. About 11 o'clock in evening of that day, the steward entered Capt. Magee's stare-room and attempted to take his life, as he lay asleep. Two severe blows were inflicted upon the left side of the captain's head, with a hatchet. Springing from his berth, he called for the steward, whom he observed, retreating to the deck. The 2d mate, then officer of the deck, was informed by the steward that the captain wished to see him, but as he was passing down the companion way, the steward fired at him a pistol loaded with a large shot. The second mate then saw the steward jump into the waist boat, and since that time he has not been heard from. The only supposition is that he must have cast himself overboard. On the following morning the ship appeared off Honolulu Harbor, having holsted the sig-nal of distress. Capt. Magee very soon received medical and surgical aid from Dr. Wood and surgeon of H. M. ship Carysfort. He was then removed on shore, and has since been apidly recovering. [New-Bedford News.

Sherman was previously drowned by his boat being capsized and stove while in the pursuit of a whale. The crew, with the exception of four, got ashore on a raft, where they remained more than six months, and were finally discovered by ship James Stewart, of St. John N. BALTIMORE CATTLE MARKET-Nov. 4. CATTLE.—The market has been well supplied with Beef Cattle during the week, and prices have ruled about the same as last quoted. On Monday there were 1025 head offered for sale at the Scales, of which 825 were sold to the prices paid ranged from 1 50 to 2 25 per 100 lbs on the week. The sales embraced upward of 100 head at prices ranging from 1 37 to 32 per 100 lbs on the hoof. We would remark, however, that most of those which have been sold at the lowest named rates were unsuitable for slaughtering, and were taken for stock cattle. There are now about 180 head n market unsold. Hocs.—The supply of Live Hogs at market this week has standing.)

been quite fair, and sales have been made to packers and butchers at prices ranging from $4 to 4 25 per 100 lbs.

WATERVILLE, (Oneida Co. N. Y.) Sept. 15, 1843.

Dear Sir-I swe it to the afflicted to inform you that in January last I was attacked by a very violent cold, caused by working in the water, which settled on my lungs. It was accompanied by a very severe pain in my breast and sides, and also a distressing cough. I had in attendance all the best medical aid in our village. But after exhausting their skill to no avail, they pronounced my disease a CONFIRMED CONSUMPTION; and they one and all gave me up to die. After much persuarien, I got the consent of my Physician to use the Balsam of Wild Cherry, prepared by Dr. Wistar. I purchased of the Agent in our place one bottle, before using half of which I began to gain strength, and it was very evident my cough was much better and my symptoms in every way standing.) Their Green and Black Teas, which have hitherto obtained the greatest notoriety, will now be found to surpass any that they have introduced, and, they think, far before any that can be possibly sold for the price in the United States.—Gunpewders, Imperials, Twankeys and Skin Teas in great variety; 18 qualities of Black Teas. The unrivaled 'Howqua mixture, fresh and in great perfection. An extensive assortment of Hysons and Young Hysons, suitable for city rerail, in lots of any quantity. Proportionable varieties of other Greens. Genuine Java Coffee, roasted dially. All goods subject to be returned if not approved of. Orders promptly executed to all parts of the country. Terms cash. chand of the Agen: in our place one bothe, below tains, and it was very evident my cough was much better and my symptoms in every way improving. I have now used three bottles, and am restored to perfect health. This result is alone owing to the use of Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry; and I take this method of giving you the information, partly to pay the debt of gratitude I owe you, and partly that others similarly afflicted may know where to apply for relief.

Very truly yours,

MR. PALMER, Druggist, under date of Waterville, Sept, 24, 1843, writes—The statement given you by Mr. Jonas Sage is well known to be true by this whole community. It certainly was a most remarkable cure. The sale of the Balsam is very good, and success in cures truly flattering.

Yours, respectfully,

Purple or livid spots appeared on the skin, attended with violent pain of the head; the symptoms being alarming, a physician was called who prescribed blistering and leaching, which produced partial relief. Hard beny lumps formed under the skin on various parts of the body, and the doctor pronounced my complaint hereditary Scrofula now for the first time developed. The following winter my sight failed in both eyes; medical aid was again resorted to, which relieved my sight during the summer; my nose now began to increase in size and the whole body rapidly enlarged with a dropsical swelling. The nose even grew very sare and discharged profusely the most loath-some substance. My whole system was involved in disease; the lumps softened and discharged freely, producing great de-bility;—ulcers now broke out on the legs, and to complete my misery, the muscles and sinews contracted so that I was ren-

TO THE PUBLIC.—Whereas Osborn & Little, of 33 Fulton-street, have advertised Conger's Edge Tools for sale, and and the impression has gone abroad that they are of my make, and whereas the said Osborn & Little are unwilling to remove said erroneous impression by stating the whereabouts of the real maker, therefore, to undeceive my friends and the public in general, I would merely state that my tools can be hadatonly No. 33 Attorneystreet, or at George Briggs & Co. No. 115 Maiden-lane, where a full supply may always be had, at a liberal discount to dealers, and in future will be stamped Conger, N. Y. 33 Attorneystreet.

O28 3m JOHN CONGER, New-York. CHURCH BELLS AND TOWN

CHURCH BELLS AND TOWN
CLOCKS.—The subscriber, who was awarded with a diploma at the New-York State Fair, 1842 and 1843, for the best loned Church Bell, is now prepared at his foundry at West Troy, N. Y. to furnish Bells of any weight, from 20 bs. to 4000 lbs. made of the best materials, and warranted to stand and tone such as to please.

Fastens to them the improved cast iron yoke with movable arms. The increasing demands for his bells is the best evidence that can be given of their excellence. To say nothing of other States, between, three and four hundred Church Bells have been furnished for different places in the State of NewYork from his foundry.

Also, Leveling and Sarveying Instruments, Conser and Brass Castings, &c old if ANDREW MENELLY.

ECONOMY AND FASHION.—The subscriber has reduced his superior imitation Moleskin Hata on fur bodies to the extreme low price of $2.25. The above are an elegant Dress Hat, and will compare advantageously with Hats sold at $2.58 and $3. Also constantly manufacturing Fur and Silk of the best quality, latest patterns, and at the lowest city process. N. B. Country cealers supplied by the case as low, if not lower, than by any other house in this city.
